In the eight years since the global financial crisis of 2008, the only constant in our ever-changing world is change itself. Even as the US dollar struggles to recover, post-Brexit Europe is in crisis while new powerhouses—particularly China and Russia—are navigating their way in a considerably less secure world.

What does this mean for emerging economies in general and Muslim economies in particular? What is the impact of these changes on our lives? How can we remain resilient and committed to the ethical and sustainable growth that is the cornerstone of the global Islamic economy?

In seeking answers to these questions, the WIEF’s mission has become more relevant than ever, and the theme of the 12th WIEF—Decentralising Growth, Empowering Future Business—articulates the Muslim world’s collective response to the crises that continue to grip conventional markets, economies and societies around the world.

These crises have shown us repeatedly that future economic growth must be inclusive, meaning that we must move away from the domination of multinationals in favour of small and medium businesses that must form the primary sources of economic growth in all nations.

If our future prosperity is to be ethical and sustainable, we must empower local businesses and communities. We must diffuse economic power from the centre throughout the periphery so that we may all share equitably in the fruits of our collective efforts.

This transition cannot happen overnight. For this reason, the 12th WIEF focuses on aspects of economic empowerment that are best suited to catalysing positive change for local communities. Industry leaders will share their views on disruptive technologies and infrastructure funding while experts will explore how established corporations and startups can synergise.
A special focus on micro-businesses will examine ways to improve SME access to credit as well as explore new opportunities in digitised trade, and of particular interest will be the discussion on upgrading Indonesian micro-businesses for better access to markets and funding. Of course, the WIEF Exhibition and the trailblazing MOCAfest will once again provide a multidisciplinary platform, the latter in particular for talented individuals from around the world to collaborate and exchange ideas that can help empower millions of people around the world.

Many of the problems we will explore require urgent solutions. The WIEF remains deeply committed to helping communities discover those solutions jointly and in the spirit of friendship.

I take this opportunity to thank the Government of Indonesia and the Ministry of Finance for hosting the 12th WIEF. This is the second time that the WIEF has gathered in Jakarta, and on behalf of the WIEF Foundation, I would like to record my gratitude to the Government of Indonesia for its enduring support.

I wish all speakers, delegates and participants a happy, productive, enlightening and valuable time here at the 12th WIEF.
It gives me great pleasure to see the annual World Islamic Economic Forum, now in its 12th edition, returning for a second time to Jakarta. On behalf of the WIEF Foundation, I would like to record my deepest appreciation of H.E. Joko Widodo, the President of Indonesia, for Indonesia’s continuing support of and friendship with the WIEF.

This year’s theme—Decentralising Growth, Empowering Future Business—is an apt response to the persistent challenges to world economic and political security as well as new developments sparked by events such as the Brexit referendum in June and its consequences for Europe in the global economy.

Viewed as part of a single continuum of cause and effect, many in Europe have had to deal with the aftershocks of the 2008 global economic crisis without having fully recovered—and now the possibility of a new crisis looms on the horizon.

And yet a perspective beyond the Eurocentric worldview paints a very different picture: according to the Thompson Reuters/DinarStandard State of the Global Islamic Economy Report 2015/2016, the world’s Muslim economy grew at almost double the global rate in 2014/2015, with Muslim consumer spending set to reach US$2.6 trillion in 2020.

Closer to home, the ASEAN region recorded robust Gross Domestic Product growth of 4.5 per cent in 2015 when Malaysia was Chair of the grouping, and is expected to post marginally higher results for 2016 despite global uncertainty.

These two facts alone indicate that the decentralisation of economic growth is not merely desirable but necessary in building more stable and just societies in the future.
The domination of the global economy by major multinational corporations creates a host of inequalities that inhibits competition and disadvantages small and medium businesses as well as local communities, and this is as applicable here in Indonesia as it is anywhere in the world.

In adverse economic conditions, this unequal relationship creates troubling systemic vulnerabilities that jeopardise entire societies and we have seen its results several times in recent decades: even our even vocabulary—which applies terms such as “contagion” to financial crises—shows how serious the situation has become.

The way forward is clear: we must empower small and medium businesses at the local level while remaining united in our vision for a prosperous and sustainable future built on foundations that are just, ethical and inclusive. Whether we live in Indonesia, ASEAN, the Middle East, Africa, Europe or elsewhere in the world, the Islamic economy is more globally relevant now than ever before.

In discussing these issues here at the 12th WIEF, I pray that participants will discover new ways to promote the Islamic economy as well as new innovative partnerships and friendships that can transcend borders and help return balance to our increasingly troubled world.

The Rise of the Consumer Economy

Venue: Plenary Hall

In the past, entire supply chains were controlled by a few large companies. Today, this is being challenged by new consumer-driven frameworks that allow consumers to design, build, market, distribute and trade among themselves. This bottom up approach to value creation is fuelled by peer to peer networks, and DIY platforms that constitute the ‘frugal economy’. Will frugal economics shape the next decade? What will happen to the traditional value supply chain?

PANEL DISCUSSION
Can Islamic Fashion Become Haute Couture?

Venue: Plenary Hall

Islamic fashion is often criticised for only catering for the Muslim consumer market, and will not make it mainstream and high fashion. But facts tell us otherwise. The consumer base for Islamic fashion draws from a diverse range of people who are also non-Muslims. And by the sheer number of potential consumer spending, this sector will take the world by storm. In 2013, Muslims spend US$266 billion on fashion alone, more than that of Japan and Italy combined. This figure is expected to increase to US$484 billion in 2019. For a market estimated to be worth US$96 billion, and with many mainstream brands creating modest fashion capsules, the modest/Islamic fashion movement can make it big. What are the constraints and prospects for it to enter into the haute couture scene?

Empowering Women in eCommerce

eCommerce has blossomed into a multi-billion dollar industry. And with women accounting for around 58% of all online purchases and deciding between 83–87% of consumer purchases, the role of women in shaping the online business landscape is bigger than ever. This has given rise to eCommerce businesses run entirely by women and sometimes exclusively for women, which gives a strong validation that there is a huge potential role for women to play in the eCommerce space. What are the effective steps for women to participate in this industry? Is running a business from home entirely possible?

Linking Islamic Financing to the Halal Sectors

Venue: Plenary Hall

The global halal industry, encompassing food, textiles, tourism and healthcare, will double to US$6.4 trillion by 2018 from 2012, according to the Malaysia International Islamic Financial Centre (MIFC). But this consolidated industry, dubbed “Halal 3.0”, will not be realised unless there is connectivity between funding and business expansion in these various halal sectors. Islamic Banks have traditionally financed businesses in the real-estate commercial and residential sectors, but have not contributed to the expansion of the halal businesses. What are the steps to close the credibility gap? What can halal businesses do to improve their creditworthiness?

Restructuring SMEs and Improving Credit Access

Venue: Plenary Hall

SMEs are beset by all sides with financial restrictions that impede their business expansion. In most cases, banks require huge collaterals from SMEs for loans, a treatment not accorded to big businesses that have the same propensity to default. One of the reasons is the structure of SMEs that is not scalable and attractive to financial institutions. What are the various credit access options available to SMEs? What is a conducive structure for SMEs to receive sustainable financing?

PANEL DISCUSSION
Upgrading Indonesian Micro-Businesses in Market Access and Funding

Venue: Plenary Hall

Micro-businesses make up an overwhelming percentage of the workforce in Indonesia, but contribution to GDP remains low and fragmented compared to their bigger counterparts. Part of the problem is due to market access and funding. Since the bulk of the population works in this sector, a concrete solution is needed to take micro-businesses to the next level. What are the policy steps being taken to address this?

Speakers:
- Dr Atef Elshabrawy, Global Expert MENA Region, International Council for Small Business, Kingdom of Bahrain

President Joko Widodo is the 7th President of Indonesia, serving in this position since October 2014.

President Joko Widodo, a forestry faculty graduate from the Gadjah Mada University in Yogyakarta, officially entered politics when he was elected as Governor of Jakarta, after proving to be very popular among both the urban and rural sections of the society.

In 1988, he founded his own business, CV Rakabu, which was later re-established and became a very successful furniture exporter by 2002. He also served as the chairman of a local branch of the country’s influential furniture manufacturers’ association.

In 2005, he decided to enter politics and ran for the office of mayor of Surakarta representing the Indonesian Democratic Party of Struggle. Initially people viewed him with skepticism as he was primarily a businessman with no political connections. He won the elections and soon proved his detractors wrong by initiating many progressive reforms in the city. As the mayor he earned much respect for his progressive reforms and his honesty which distinguished him from other politicians. He developed a rapport with the people as he had risen to this post from an underprivileged background, and thus could connect with people from all sections of the society.

In 2010, he was re-elected for a second term of office with over 90 per cent of the vote. In 2012, he decided to run for the Governor of Jakarta. President Joko Widodo was contesting the election against the incumbent, Fauzi Bowo, and ousted him in the second round of that election. As the Governor of Jakarta, he implemented many policies to encourage small industries and focused on improving Jakartans’ access to health care and education.

He implemented a universal health care programme in Jakarta, based on a ‘Healthy Jakarta Card’ (Kartu Jakarta Sehat or KJS) which became very popular. He also launched the “Smart Jakarta Card” in order to help poor students by giving them an allowance that can be withdrawn from ATMs in order to buy school supplies.

The leader of the Indonesian Democratic Party of Struggle, Megawati Sukarnoputri chose Joko Widodo to be the presidential candidate of her party in 2014. His mayorship in Surakarta and his governorship in Jakarta had made him highly respected and popular all over Indonesia. He won the election with more than 53 percent of the popular vote, defeating his opponent Prabowo Subianto.

After assuming office in 2014, President Joko Widodo focused on curbing corruption within the Indonesian administration and has been taking steps to attract more foreign direct investment into the country. He has also implemented land reforms, improved public services, and initiated healthcare and educational programmes.

He was awarded the Bintang Jalasena Utama, 1st Class (“Navy Meritorious Service Star”) in 2011 by the Government of Indonesia, and the 1st Class “Star of the Republic of Indonesia” (BRI), Bintang Republik Indonesia Adipurna in 2014, and was once ranked as the third best mayor in the world by the international City Mayors Foundation.
THE HON. DATO’ SRi MOHD NAJIB TUN ABDUL RAZAK

Prime Minister of Malaysia and Patron of WIEF Foundation

Dato’ Sri Najib Tun Razak is the Prime Minister of Malaysia. As the son of Tun Abdul Razak Hussein, Malaysia’s second Prime Minister, and nephew of Tun Hussein Onn, Malaysia’s third Prime Minister, Dato’ Sri Najib was born into a family of political pedigree.

40 YEARS OF PUBLIC SERVICE

Having initially pursued a career in business, he only entered public service upon his father’s death. After an outpouring of public support, at the age of 22 he became the youngest MP in Malaysia’s history. Despite the absence of his father to help him, by 25 he was a Deputy Cabinet Minister, by 29 the Chief Minister of a state, and by 33 a full Cabinet Minister. Having successfully led most key ministries, including Education, Defence and Finance, aged 55 on 3 April 2009 he became Prime Minister.

POLITICAL AND ECONOMIC TRANSFORMATION

Since then, Prime Minister Najib Tun Razak has implemented the most far-reaching political and economic reform programmes since Malaysia’s independence. These include:

- Repealing the colonial-era Internal Security Act, which permitted indefinite detention without trial;
- Ending Malaysia’s 60-year State of Emergency;
- Introducing measures to increase media freedom, such as scrapping restrictions on newspaper publishing licenses;
- Reforming the Universities and University Colleges Act to allow undergraduates to participate in political activities;
- Creating the Peaceful Assembly Act, for the first time enshrining in law the right to peaceful protest;
- Repealing the Banishment Act;
- Repealing the Restricted Residences Act;
- Implementing various electoral reforms.
- Diversifying the economy and halving government dependency on oil and gas from 41 percent of total revenue when he assumed office in 2009, to 21 percent by 2015.

The Prime Minister also introduced the ‘1Malaysia’ concept, which stresses the importance of national unity, regardless of one’s race or religious beliefs.

His Government Transformation Programme has fundamentally changed the provision of government services – improving education, widening access to healthcare, developing rural infrastructure, expanding public transport, reducing poverty, and cutting crime. Alongside this, his Economic Transformation Programme has significantly liberalised the economy, creating more than 1.8 million jobs, raising living standards, virtually eliminating absolute poverty through implementing a minimum wage, encouraging foreign investment – which grew by more than 22 percent per annum from when he took office in 2009 until 2015 – and turned Malaysia into one of Asia’s most dynamic and successful economies. His flagship New Economic Model is on target to transition Malaysia to a high-income nation by 2020.

FOREIGN POLICY RESULTS

Since assuming office, the Prime Minister has presided over a new era in Malaysia’s foreign policy, ending populist confrontation tactics and instead pushing for open regionalism. A strong believer in ASEAN, he has promoted cooperative ties with major powers, emerging economies and the developing world. In particular, the relations he has cultivated with other world leaders has vastly increased trade, foreign investment and jobs for Malaysians, and helped to bring peace and stability to the region.
For example, the Prime Minister played a key role in facilitating a peace agreement to bring an end to Asia’s longest-running insurgency in the Southern Philippines. He also personally negotiated behind-the-scenes with pro-Russian rebels in Ukraine, securing the return of bodies, wreckage and black boxes from Malaysia Airlines flight MH17 – something no other world leader was able to do.

The Prime Minister has called for a new Global Movement of Moderates to combat extremism, attracting support from President Barack Obama among others, and was the first Muslim head of government to unequivocally condemn suicide bombings and label them un-Islamic.

ELECTION WINS

In 2013 the Prime Minister was returned to office after winning Malaysia’s 13th general election. His Barisan Nasional (BN) coalition won 133 seats against the opposition’s 89. In 2016, despite being a mid-term government subject to an unprecedented campaign of politically motivated allegations, BN under the Prime Minister’s leadership won landslide victories with hugely increased majorities in Sarawak – Malaysia’s biggest state – and also in the constituencies of Kuala Kangsar and Sungai Besar.

Following these landslide election wins, the Prime Minister said his priority will continue to be the economic development, social welfare and security of all Malaysians.
President Emomali Rahmon was born on October 5, 1952 in Dangara district of the Republic of Tajikistan.

From 1971 to 1974 he served in the Pacific Navy Military Force. After the demobilisation, he started working at the Lenin collective farm in Dangara.

He graduated from the Faculty of Economics at the Tajik National University in 1982. From 1987 to 1992, he was appointed the Chairman of the Lenin collective farm in Dangara.

In 1990, President Rahmon was elected as People’s Deputy at the Supreme Council of the Republic of Tajikistan of twelfth convocation. In autumn 1992, he was elected as the Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Council of the People’s Deputies of Kulyab province. Later that year, he was elected as the Chairman of the Supreme Council of the Republic of Tajikistan.

On November 6, 1994, Emomali Rahmon was elected to the post of the President of the Republic of Tajikistan by nation-wide voting.

5 years later, President Rahmon was re-elected on the alternative basis and by nation-wide voting and assumed an office of the President of the Republic of Tajikistan for a seven-year term.

In 2006, at free, transparent and democratic elections, held on the alternative basis, Emomali Rahmon was elected as the President of the Republic of Tajikistan for a further seven-year term.

The greatest achievement of President Rahmon is, undoubtedly, the establishment of lasting peace and national unity. The bitter experience of internal wars in the world suggests that no single state could overcome its opponents.
on the battlefield and stand at the head of the state machine, management structures and military agencies, using weapons, equipment and its warriors.

By ensuring peace and national unity, he laid a solid foundation for moving towards the economic recovery and the beginning of constructive affairs.

Over twenty years of independence, under the leadership of President Rahmon, Tajikistan made confident steps forward on the path of building an independent democratic state. During this time, the country has had its own flag, emblem and anthem. Principal foundations of statehood—a national army and border troops have emerged and matured. Tajikistan became a member of the authoritative international organizations and established political, economic and cultural ties with most countries in the world. The fundamentals of the constitutional system and public administration were streamlined, national currency was put into circulation and national passport was recognised.

Thus, the historical merits of President Rahmon recognise the fact that he took over management of the state, prevented the threat of its collapse, extinguished the flames of civil war, restored paralysed power authorities, particularly the law enforcement bodies, created a national army and border troops, provided the conditions for consolidation of power and state, guaranteed the nation’s peace, returned the refugees and displaced persons back to homeland. He laid a solid foundation for building a new society of Tajikistan, held constitutional reform in the country, created a new Constitution of Tajikistan, provided political and legal basis for signing General Agreement on the Establishment of Peace and National Accord on June 27, 1997. He also brought peace between Tajiks, which was instructive experience for the world community. He created the conditions for national revival, marked the beginning of creative works, radically improved the socio-economic situation of the people, eliminated the threat of hunger and contributed to the growth of political authority of the state on the international arena.

At the new stage of constructing young Tajik state, a fortune bestowed upon the ancient Tajik nation unique historical personality – President Emomali Rahmon – the person, who represents the highest qualities – justice, generosity, courage, compassion and unique ability to unite the people. It is the combination of these qualities that has brought society to a high level of self-knowledge.

Prime Minister Ranil Wickremesinghe was sworn in as the Prime Minister of Sri Lanka for the fourth time on 21st August 2015. He is the Leader of the United National Party (UNP), Sri Lanka's largest political party, which is a constituent member of the National Unity Government led by H.E. the President Maithripala Sirisena. Ranil Wickremesinghe was first appointed as the Prime Minister from 1993 - 1994 after the assassination of President Ranasinghe Premadasa. He was again elected as the Prime Minister from 2001 - 2004 when the United National Front Government won the general elections in 2001.

A lawyer by profession, Prime Minister Ranil was elected to Parliament in 1977 at the age of 28, having worked in the Youth League of the UNP from his university days. As the youngest Minister in Sri Lanka at the time, he held the post of Deputy Minister of Foreign Affairs under President Jayewardene. Soon after, in recognition of his exceptional talents and unique capacity for work, he was appointed to the Cabinet as the Minister of Youth Affairs and Employment. Later on, he was given the portfolio of Education. Then in 1989, as a seasoned legislator, he was made the Leader of the House under President Premadasa. He also served as the Minister of Industries, Science and Technology.

From 1977 to 1994, during the seventeen years that the UNP was in power yet again, Prime Minister Ranil, made a crucial impact on the development of the country. He is still considered to be the best Education Minister of the country due to the radical educational reforms he initiated in the 1980s, aimed at the qualitative improvement of school education (with a special focus on English, Technology and Computer skills) and the Education Administrative Service. He energised the young people in Sri Lanka with creative, motivational as well as skill development programs through youth clubs (Yovun Samajas) and youth camps (Yovunpuras).

Later on, as the Minister of Industries, Science and Technology, he was responsible for Sri Lanka’s second round of economic liberalisation that commenced in 1989 with focus on financial deregulation and industrial promotion in rural areas through infrastructure development and the institution of industrial estates. As the MP for Biyagama, he dramatically developed his electorate to become a modern model suburb with brand new carpeted roads, electrification schemes, water and sanitation projects, schools, community centres and other infrastructure inputs. He also established the Biyagama Free Trade Zone to provide employment for thousands of young men and women in a range of industries.

In 1993 after the untimely demise of President Premadasa, Prime Minister Ranil was appointed Prime Minister during the presidency of D. B. Wijetunge. Eveready for a challenge, the young Prime Minister rose to the responsibility of high office and he has been credited for establishing law, order and stability in the country at the crucial juncture. During the short period, the country recorded the highest level of economic growth for the decade.

After the UNP was voted out in 1994, Prime Minister Ranil became the Leader of the United National Party and the Leader of the Opposition in Parliament. Under his leadership, the UNP undertook extensive restructuring at institutional and grassroots levels and further democratised the Party to represent a more equitable balance in terms of ethnicity, gender and youth.
In 2001, he led his party back to power and was sworn in as Prime Minister once again. In spite of the fact that the President was from the opposing party who could exercise full executive powers and was a strong opposition in Parliament, Prime Minister Ranil’s most significant achievements were to restore full-time electricity, rejuvenate the ailing economy, break down the many ethnic barriers in the country, bring the warring LTTE to the negotiating table for peace talks, and galvanise the goodwill and financial support of the international community for Sri Lanka.

Outside of politics, Prime Minister Ranil is the Chair of the Dhayakasabha of one of Sri Lanka’s historic temples, the Kelaniya Vihara and a dhayakaya of Gangaramaya, Walukaramaya and the Weragodalla (Sedawatte) temples. He has written and spoken widely on Sri Lankan history, Buddhism and world politics.

After years of hard work and dedication, he is now formally recognised as an important part of the cultural life of East Timor; he was a featured speaker at the prestigious TEDx Dili earlier this year. He is married and has 3 children.
The idea of painting Batik on electric guitars came to Haryo Sasongko (Kongko), 15 years ago. He started customising some of his branded guitars collection, and soon the beautiful art pieces gained recognition from his family and colleagues. Inspired by the feedback and the will to create an originally made guitar, Kongko started creating his own guitar designs and specification, and from that process, the first line of guitars was born which he then branded as G&B Guitars.

G&B Guitars did not stop developing there. Not only did they paint beautiful batik designs on guitars, but they sought to meet the standards from the demands of professional guitarists. This inspired them to work harder to develop designs that brought comfort and great playability. In 2011, after 10 years in researching and developing the programme, the originally made guitars of G&B Canting Guitar received positive feedback from players and art collectors. This was then followed by other models, like G&B Canting Bass. The legal trademark of G&B began in 2011, and today G&B is a registered brand and company under the name of PT Gitar Batik Produktama.
Jamal Raslan
Spoken Word Artist, Malaysia

Jamal Raslan, a versatile writer with experience in advertising, is an established spoken word poet in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia. As a copywriter, he has worked with BBDO as the Malay copywriter in their Creative Department and also worked with other advertising agencies such as Saatchi & Saatchi Malaysia and TBWA. As a poet, he has performed in various local and international creative and corporate events, and won his debut slam in 2010. He has performed at Impact Forum, Singapore; the World Islamic Economic Forum, London; and has appeared on TEDxKL twice. His exploits as a poet earned him an invitation from Saatchi & Saatchi to guest-write their winning pitch for a Bank Simpanan Nasional (National Savings Bank, Malaysia) campaign before going on to perform at the campaign launch.

Jamal has also expanded his portfolio to teach English and poetry to high school students. Jamal juggles this passion with his day job as a banker. He recently concluded his gig as a consultant for the upcoming “25” campaign with ASTRO Oasis, one of the channels under the satellite pay-per-view TV network ASTRO.

Having released an EP titled “The Word” at the Georgetown Literary Festival 2012, Jamal is currently finishing his first poetry anthology and is collecting materials for his debut album targeted for a release in 2016. He is also collecting materials for a book to be published in the same year.
Krom Monster is a unique collaboration between British and Cambodian musicians. On their eponymous debut and the subsequent Versions Metal Postcard 2014, Krom Monster sketched out a unique take on Cambodian musical traditions, where ancient melodies combined with ragged beats, digital noise and lush soundscapes. The band emerged from a series of residencies bringing together Cambodian and British musicians. This residency was conceived and supported by the Cambodian Living Arts, a major force in promoting the recovery and rejuvenation of contemporary Khmer music, and Incidental, a contemporary arts organisation in the UK. The result is an energetic live performance that resamples traditional instruments, reworking traditional themes and blending Khmer themes with contemporary electronics, urban music and free improvisation. Live shows are accompanied by responsive video projections developed by David Gunn and Tith Kanitha, that deconstruct a collage of footage from contemporary and historical Cambodia. Krom Monster features Sour Vanna on Gong Tum, Chamroeun Phan on Tro Sao, Lun Panith on Ksae Diew and David Gunn on laptop.

In 2010, he graduated from the National Art School in Sydney, Australia. He has exhibited in Australia, Switzerland, Indonesia and Timor-Leste. Wani Ardy & The Guitar Polygamy

Music Band, Malaysia

Wani Ardy & The Guitar Polygamy has had an eventful year so far; an expanding lineup, a sound that is getting increasingly diverse and difficult to pigeonhole, and a barely feasible DIY touring schedule across the Peninsula. The band is going all heart on all four cylinders, proving that they are rapidly becoming the little group that can.

Marrying the tender, melodic toughness of her early singer/songwriter influences (KT Tunstall, Missy Higgins, Nick & Liesl to name a few) with a trippier, slanted fare (Sia, Filastine, and Portishead), the upcoming record Raskat is already shaping up to be as eclectic and potentially peerless in its own right; Gelombang Dasar Laut is trip hop with heavy Javanese overtones slathered with feedback and noise, Gula Melaka is poetry underscored with sensual, dreamy synth pop and Lampu Jalan already treads on semi-post rock territory.

Gardu House
Street Art Collective, Republic of Indonesia

Gardu House is an Art Space established in 2012 and founded by Graffiti artists named Artcoholic. They have a goal to fulfill what is actually needed by the community such as workplace, exhibition space and stores to nurture collaboration and growth amongst artists. Gardu House has become a place for communication and exchange between both local and international artists.

Gardu House consists of 3 divisions: exhibition space, street art shop and visual studio.
The House of Natural Fiber (HONF), Yogyakarta, is a New Media art laboratory, founded in 1999. HONF concentrates on the principles of critique and innovation.

Since the beginning, the House of Natural Fiber has consistently focused on cultural development and New Media art, running numerous New Media art projects and workshops. In every project, they concentrate on interactivity with people and environments. Thinking forward, positively and creatively is HONF’s vision. In the implementation of this vision, in every programme, they work towards the development of art with technology.

Aside from the development of intellectual material in New Media art, HONF also focuses on the younger generation. HONF has set up the Education Focus Program (EFP), which offers various workshops for children and ‘newcomers’ to new media technologies.

HONF is the organiser of the Yogyakarta International Media Art Festival, Yogyakarta Videowork Festival & HONFab Lab Indonesia.
Nouha Saleh
Visual Artist,
Republic of Indonesia

Nouha Saleh always enjoyed drawing and painting since her early childhood years. After she learnt to read the Holy Qur’an and write in the Arabic language, her love for calligraphy began to grow.

After high school, she continued her studies at Swinburne University of Technology in Melbourne, Australia, where she received her Bachelor of Design degree. She continued her life journey to Montreal, Canada where she co-designed the book “Pipe Fiend: A Visual Overdose of Canada’s Most Infamous Skate Spot”, and designed Montreal’s famous Hip Hop group Nomadic Massive’s first album “Nomad’s Land” and a few other projects. Her work mostly incorporates illustration, design and calligraphy.
Rasmee Wayrana
Singer and Songwriter, Kingdom of Thailand

Rasmee began singing at the age of 5 with her father, founder of Jariang, a Khmer folk singing band. She joined the local band in the Isaan region at the age of 13. Her music is a unique mix of traditional Mor lam-Jariang cultures with Soul. She calls her singing style “Isaan Soul”.

Currently living in Chiang Mai, she has collaborated with various foreign musicians, such as Poni Hoax and Limousine from France and Bamako Express from Israel-Thailand, amongst others. She is frequently invited to Europe to play and record music.

In March 2016, Rasmee received 3 national “Kom Chad Luek” awards as Best Female Singer of the year, Best Album “Isaan Soul” and Best Song “Maya”.

Each Business Exchange session is 30 – 45 minutes in duration. During that time, corporations will be given tables to pitch. Corporations participating in the Business Exchange sessions will be given 7 minutes to pitch their company and their key products/services. The world economy is going through a period of slow growth. The International Monetary Fund (IMF) estimates that global economic growth in 2016 and 2017 will be around 3.4% and 3.6% respectively. Similar to the IMF, the World Bank estimates the numbers to be slightly lower at approximately 3.3% and 3.2% respectively.

Despite the global slowdown, the prospect of Indonesia’s economy remains positive. As a result of expanded fiscal and reserve buffers (Standards & Poor, May 2015), Indonesia’s economy is demonstrating resilience and has been able to respond swiftly to external shocks (Standards & Poor, May 2015). The country’s economy has reached its turning point in the last quarter of 2015, with the Gross Domestic Product (GDP) recorded at around 8,976 trillion Rupiahs (an increase of around 4.9% compared to 2014). In 2014, Indonesia was ranked 16th largest economy in the world. As a result, stable growth in Indonesia is expected to be supported by public consumption and investments.

In 2016, the World Bank estimates a higher growth rate for Indonesia at around 5.3%, while the IMF predicts slightly lower at around 5%. The Oxford Economics also claims that the long-term outlook of Indonesian economy is relatively strong with a prospect of 5% economic growth rate in the real term until 2025.

In addition, Indonesia also has the 4th largest population in the world, with around 250 million people. Currently, around 45 million people are under the consuming class category, with approximately 50% of its population categorised as young people under 30 years old. The World Bank reports elucidates that this favourable demographic profile of Indonesia could serve as one of the powerful drivers of growth. With burgeoning middle-income class and educated workforce, there is a huge potential within the domestic market.

The World Economic Forum (WEF) has also acknowledged that market size is one of Indonesia’s key competitiveness factors. (Indonesia is ranked 10th in the market size category among the 140 countries observed in WEF’s Global Competitiveness Index).

Also, having the largest Muslim population in the world, Indonesia has an enormous potential to be a key player in the Islamic economic sectors, such as Islamic finance, halal business, as well as modest fashion and the creative industry.
INDONESIA’S ECONOMY

Strategic Investment Destination

Indonesia has been highly recognised as an ideal investment destination by several international organisations. The country was ranked first place as “Southeast Asia’s Top Investment Destination for United States’ Multinational Companies” by AmCham ASEAN Business Outlook Survey in 2015. Furthermore, in the same survey, Indonesia was among the best locations for potential new business expansion, alongside Myanmar and Vietnam.

Similarly, Indonesia was ranked 2nd for the “Most Promising Country for Business Development in December 2015” and “The Best Investment Destination in Asia for 2015” by Japan Bank for International Cooperation and The Economist respectively. In addition, Indonesia was ranked 14th globally in 2014 as a country with the highest Foreign Direct Investment (FDI) inflows by the UNCTAD, moving up five places compared to 2013. This prospect has also been highly acknowledged by the Asian Development Bank, which has allocated around US$1.6 billion of their portfolio in Indonesia with the possibility of expansion. Finally, three major credit ratings such as S&P, Moody’s and Fitch have also assigned a positive and stable outlook for Indonesia.

Large and Stable Economy

- 4th largest population in the world with 64% of the population in the productive age (Median Age of 28.6)
- 2015 Dependency ratio of 49%
- 2015 GDP growth of 48% due to stable household consumption and robust investment growth
- Benign inflation in 2015 of 3.35%
- Direct investment reached IDR 545.4tn for January - December 2015
- Rated as investment grade by Moody’s, Fitch, Japan Credit Rating Agency and Rating & Investment

New Economic Structure

- From commodity-based to industrialised-natural resources-based economy via infrastructure development
- From consumption-led to investment-led growth via a stronger manufacturing sector and more investment initiatives
- Policies to maintain purchasing power to stimulate domestic economy in the midst of weakening macroeconomic conditions
Consistent Budget Reform

> Budget reform as part of larger economic reform initiative
> Tax base to be broadened to reduce dependency on commodities
> Fuel subsidies significantly reduced and spending redirected to more productive allocation – infrastructure, welfare, healthcare and education
> Prudent debt management by maintaining budget deficit at a safe level while diversifying sources of financing

High Infrastructure Investment

> Three main sources of financing for IDR 5tn investment needs: State and regional budget, State-owned enterprises and PPP
> Continuing from 2015’s policy, infrastructure spending will be higher than fuel subsidy
> Infrastructure spending focused on basin infrastructure projects – arterial roads, railways, dams irrigation, small seaports and local airports
> Fiscal and non-fiscal incentives to attract infrastructure investment and promote PPP

Continuous Structural Reform

In view of Indonesia’s large amount of natural resources and a favourable demographic profile, the Government of Indonesia is committed to shifting from resource-based economy to manufacturing and value-adding sectors through policy reforms and infrastructure development. Starting from last year, the Government has significantly increased the budget allocation for infrastructure development at around 290.3 trillion Rupiahs or 15% of total spending. This allocation will continue to expand in 2016. This effort is aimed at reducing logistics cost among regions in Indonesia, as well as increasing efficiency, reducing operational budgets and providing higher profit margins for businesses.

In 2015, the Indonesian Government had also launched several stimuli to promote investment in the country, such as licence and permit simplification, tax incentives in the form of tax relief for labour-intensive industries, and enhancement of integrated logistics zones.

In conclusion, combining Government’s commitment and favourable economic factors, Indonesia is on a positive trajectory for greater growth and development.
